

Some divers just want to be in the water as much as humanly possible and wouldn't mind sleeping on the dive deck if it meant prime bottom time come sunrise. Others prefer the finer things on their surface intervals — whether that be on-deck HD movie screenings, en-suite bars with all sorts of potent potables, spa treatments that can only be described as decadent, or cuisine featuring with the freshest food and finest flavors. And most of us would love both. Here's a look at some of the most luxurious vessels sailing the seas that will offer you heavenly luxuries on board and unforgettable dive experiences beneath the waves.

Scubaspa Ying

Designed for divers and they're non-diving companions, Scubaspa's Ying — and its identical sister ship, the Yang — delivers for both. With an outdoor spa lounge, two bars, two sundecks, an outdoor HD movie screen and a spa boutique, the Scubaspa Ying and its staff will spoil you in and out of the water.

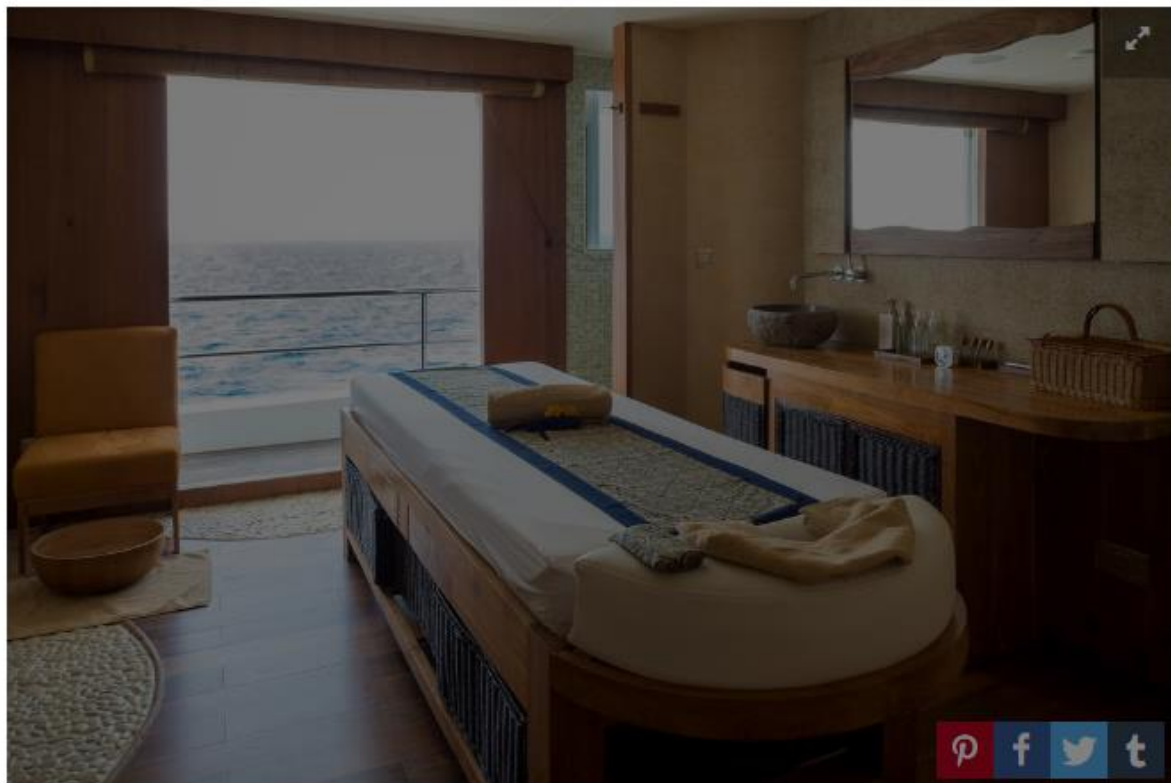

Scubaspa's Floating Resort at sea

Courtesy Scubaspa

WHY DIVERS WILL LOVE IT: You'll be hard pressed to find divers who don't enjoy the world-famous sites in the Maldives. This is a PADI 5-Star Dive Resort with all of the guides and equipment to deliver the best diving. Note: 15-17 dives are included in the scuba package.

WHY EVERYONE WILL LOVE IT: Well, if you're a fan of being pampered – the on-board spa offers everything from a manicure to a 90-minute bamboo stone massage – staying in spacious rooms and relaxing with the Maldives lining the horizon, you'll enjoy this cruise.

The on-board spa boutique of Scubaspa Ying

Courtesy Scubaspa

WHERE YOU'LL GO: The Maldives

PASSENGER/CREW RATIO: 40/35

LENGTH/BEAM: 164 feet/37 feet

WANNA GET AWAY? Scubaspa Ying